TAB KEEPERS WERE BADLY FOOLED BY

Rumford Voters Saturday Voted for Bridge

When they Appeared to be Voting Against It.

Saturday, June 27, 1908, the town of Rumford in special town meeting voted to build a bridge across the Androscoggin river near the foot bridge. The vote was 278 in favor and 269 against. Saturday, Aug. 28, 1909, at another special town meeting, it was voted to appropriate $65,000 for the purpose of building the bridge. The vote was 310 in favor and 336 against. The increase in the total vote by 131, shows the intense interest in the matter taken by the voters. The history leading up to the present situation was very clearly outlined in the Citizen last week, as well as the merits of the case. That will not be gone over again.

With the calling of the meeting last Saturday, went all the efforts of these ca both sides to get out every possible vote. Those opposed knew by a careful canvass that there were at least 300 votes in the up-country district that could naturally be relied upon to vote against the appropriation, and these were all communicated with and the entire farming section aroused; and they were at the polls. It was not thought possible that any considerable number would vote for the appropriation.

In the meanwhile there had appeared in the Citizen a review of the bridge history and a statement of the advantages of the bridge, and that was printed in circular form and distributed throughout the farming districts, and some were seen personally and talked with. There can be no doubt that many saw new light in the matter, and did not vote against the appropriation as it was expected they would.

A most significant situation was revealed when the votes were counted. Anything like it was never known in this or perhaps any other town. As the voters lined up to cast their ballots there were tab keepers watching, and as the vote was open and by printed slips "yes" or "no" it was easy to see what sort of a vote each man had in his hand. Long before the polls closed it was conceded that the appropriation had been lost by at least a hundred votes. All the guesses were as to the size of the majority against it. The bridge men openly admitted the defeat. They had even begun to discuss the next move to be taken. Those who had been officially in charge of the balloting were as sure that the vote was against the appropriation as were the tab keepers. When the box was turned the first surprise came, for it was seen that the yes votes were more numerous than was expected, and as the count proceeded it became evident that the vote was much closer than anyone had thought. When the final count had been made and it was found the appropriation had been carried by four majority the tabulators were so surprised that they went over the piles of votes again and made sure that no mistake had been made. WHERE IS MRS. LANE? HER WEDDING MORN

Came and She Went, Where no One can Tell.

Had Recently Bought out a Restaurant.

Several months ago, a fine appearing young woman came to Rumford, and found employment at W. W. Small's hotel on Bridge street. Her name was given as Mrs. Elmer May Lane. She was a good table girl, as far as the work being done well goes, but as it now develops she had no sense of responsibility and because she got offended at one of the other girls, quit her job in the midst of the rush of noon business, and went away without saying a word to Mr. Small.

She obtained employment at Spiller's and not long after that, (about the first of August), she became proprietor of the place. The dining room was nicely fixed up, and as she was a smart woman and well liked, there appeared every reason to believe that she would make a success of the business.

Some where along the way she became acquainted with a young man from Mexico, who bears a very good reputation, and has a good position. He became enamored of her and they became engaged to be married. The wedding was set for Wednesday night, Wednesday morning Mrs. Lane went away on the early train and left no word as to her destination, or when she would return. The groom-to-be has not admitted that his fiancée has gone for good, neither does he say that he has lost faith in her, but as he does not tell where she has gone or when she is to return, it is taken to mean that he is as much in the dark as are her numerous creditors.

It is denied that he is a loser to any extent financially. There was a fair amount of business in the cafe, and every prospect that it would continue. The conclusion is that the matrimonial prospect was the prime cause of her disappearance. As the man was a good roll-bite fellow, there can be no fault of his in the matter. That causes many inferences to be drawn as to her real motives. She could not have profited much by going away for, while she took what money was

GIFT TO THE VIL- LAGE CORPORATION By The Columbian Club of Bethel.

The Columbian Club has given a helping hand to the village in placing receptacles for waste paper, fruit skins and other small refuse articles that litter our sidewalks and streets.

Six neatly painted and lettered galvanized iron barrels are soon to be seen in different parts of the village. These gifts are selected and paid for by the Columbian Club, who have devoted the proceeds of a lecture entertainment for this worthy cause.

The painting was done by these public spirited lady "birds of passage" at the head of Birck street who so admire our lovely village as to wish to be allowed to cooperate with those who work for its still greater beauty.

Those of us who recall the days before the Columbian Club placed the fountain in the midst of our Common, will see that whatever these public spirited women undertake is for the good and pleasure of our community. It is therefore hoped that the wrappers from stores and envelopes as they are removed from the post office, will find their way into the barrels, placed so conveniently near business corners.

If parents and teachers will train our Bethel boys and girls into public spirited citizens they can have a better object lesson than this new venture, which is placed before our community with the sincerest confidence in the generous spirit with which the efforts of this club have always been received.

SAVE YOUR LIBRARY SLIPS.

They Are Worth Dollars and Cost You Nothing.

Will Be Redeemed at the Cit- izen Office at Full Value.

On page 4 of this issue is an advertisement concerning the library slip plan, which should prove of interest to all readers of The Oxford County Citizen.

During the past few months, many housewives may have noticed library slips within the packages of certain products which they have obtained from the local markets. These doubtless have been considered of very little importance and hence have attracted very little attention. As a matter of fact, each full library slip found in such packages is actually worth one cent, each one-half slip is worth one-half cent, and different slips of different values accordingly.

Those who have received more or less of such slips will be interested to know that the Oxford County Citizen has become the local redeeming office for such slips, and many who have saved library slips in the past, and all who may save them henceforth, will be pleased to know that beginning with this issue and until further notice, each and every copy of the paper will contain a one-half library slip. These slips are worth one-half cent each and will be redeemed at our office for their full value, hence the fifty-two papers which

TUESDAY EVENING WITH THE VICTOR.

The entertainment advertised in last week's issue to be given in Garland Chapel on Tuesday evening, came off as scheduled. Mrs. Wm. Rogers Chapman, in her pleasing way, fittingly introduced the various artists, which included the world's most famous, and the Victor over tireless and never tiring, brought the audience, if not face to face, within the hearing of the artists wonderful voices and furnished a pleasant and much enjoyed evening. Mrs. Chapman also read several selections which were much appreciated and enjoyed by the audience.

The chapel was well filled and the entertainment very successful from every standpoint, and the members of the Ladies' Club, under whose auspices it was given, are, as ever, fully appreciative of Mrs. Chapman's kindness in thus assisting them as she has so many times in the past.

EVERY THING READY AT CANTON FOR LABOR DAY

Men have been at work the past few days at Canton Park, getting everything ready for the big labor day celebration. A large number of fast horses have been entered and it is expected that great speed will be seen on the tracks.

The motor cycle race is attracting the attention of the owners of motors all over the state. A number of fast machines have already been entered. The balloon ascension will prove a great attraction. Nothing like it has ever before been attempted in the State. In connection with the fireworks, Prof. Bonnette will make a night ascension and parachute leap.

Great interest is being taken in the ball games, and the managers of the different teams are doing their utmost to get together strong clubs. Some of the best players in Maine will be seen on the Canton Fair grounds Labor day.

Everything looks bright for a big midway. Several applications for the privileges have been received. Mr. (Guptil) will be there with his merry-go-round, English Harry with his den of snakes, the mermaid and several other attractions.

The Rumford band will furnish music all day on the ground. The 180 yard dash is open to anyone. If the weather is fair there will be the biggest celebration that will occur in Maine, as Labor day at Canton. A good time is in store for everyone attending. Special trains and special rates to and from all points.

REV. WEBSTER WOODBURY

Passed Away in So. Framing- ham, Mass., Last Week.

Rev. Webster Woodbury died Aug. 24th at the Framingham Hospital from the shock attendant upon a surgical operation and the news of his sudden passing away causes great sorrow to a very large circle of friends in Massachusetts and Maine, where he was born and received his education. He attended for college at North Brimington Academy and was graduated from Bowdoin in 1864. After teaching one year he entered Bangor Theological Seminary and after his graduation married Hulda E. Denison of Norway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Denison. He at once entered upon his first pastorate at Ashfield, Mass., later came to Skowhegan, Maine, where he labored successfully eleven years, when he resigned and was called to Foxboro, Mass. He spent one year as pastor in Mauch Chunk, Pa., and here his older son, Harold, died of typhoid fever at the age of 20.

His heart turned back to New England and he accepted a call to Milford, Mass., where his only child, Clarence, died of diphtheria just as he had entered Harvard College. Mr. Woodbury labored with rare Christian fortitude, endearing himself more and more to the hearts of his people, a deep bond of sympathy binding them close together until failing health compelled him to ask to be relieved from his active pastoral relations, and with a sincere regret it was granted, closing a pastorate of eleven years.

Nine years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Woodbury made their home in South Framingham, and it has been his privilege to minister to many churches where the pastor has resigned or has been called to a higher service. Among those were Natick, Taunton, Worcester, Franklin and Cambridge and others, who have enjoyed his ministry. Mr. Woodbury has been called Home while at the zenith of his power and influence. He preached at Cambridge Aug. 15 and expected to preach to his former church at Foxboro, Aug. 22nd, but Dr. Mixer, the Boston specialist, assured him an operation was necessary at once, which promised renewed strength for service, but it was otherwise decreed. The operation was performed by Dr. Mixer of Boston and

CANTON GRANGE FIELD DAY.

Saturday, Aug. 23, the date set for the annual field day of Canton Grange, proved to be one of the most beautiful days of the season, and an exceedingly pleasant and interesting meeting was held at "Hunker Farm," the hospitable home of the worthy Master, Chas. E. Richardson and wife. A delightful green canopy had been erected on the spacious lawn that shaded the entire company from the sun's rays, and with the decorations of wild flowers made a pretty and festive scene.

Several prominent speakers were present, the first on the program being V. F. Deane of Bethel, an experienced fruit grower, who spoke on the planting and growing of fruit trees to maturity. His remarks were extremely interesting and profitable.

A picnic dinner was served at noon, after which Prof. Dyer of Orono, gave a scientific talk on the breeding and feeding of dairy stock, which was listened to with interest. W. E. Bleker of Turner, Sec. of the State Pomological Society, gave an interesting talk on the care of the fruit trees after maturity, marketing, etc.

The audience was favored with piano solos by Miss Eleanor Westgate, one of Canton's promising musicians, and violin solos by Frank Richardson, were enjoyed.

The meeting closed with a rising vote of thanks to the host and hostess for their hospitality.

MEXICO POST OFFICE ENTERED.

Friday night the post office at Mexico was alerted, it was thought by means of a skeleton key by boys incidentally. Nothing of great value was taken as money and stamps are not left in the office over night. Only a few pennies in the money order drawer and a small quantity in a box on the shelf, making about a dollar in all were taken.

LOCAL HISTORY.

Rev. Chas. Frost, Bethel West Parish Congre- gational Church.

Incidental Memorandum—By Leonard B. Chapman. Number 20.

EXTERNAL ASSOCIATION CON- TINUED.

"Yes, death steady at his work has again entered our ranks and removed one of our number who has been from the commencement of this society one of our constant attendants. She had grown from a child to womanhood with us; always appeared interested, committing and reciting the lessons that were given out to her. At the time of the revival in this place, her mind became interested more deeply in religious matters and she never gave up the hope which she in her very early life indulged. She engaged in teaching to much profit to her soul and we trust to her pupils. The labor brought her in contact with much human depravity. She expressed her gratitude to her parents in her diary for giving her up to God in infant baptism and in a letter found after her decease, addressed to her brother, it appears she intended to publicly declare her dedication to God's service by uniting with the church, but this act was prevented, we however trust she is a member of the church triumphant in heaven."

This record was made in May of 1846—just sixty-three years ago. The event may have a traditional record and the name may be brought to light by some reader of the Citizen and thus furnish an interesting historical item that cannot now be found.

"July, 1846," the chronicler thus continues: "Two young ladies, children of this association have come out from the world and taken the covenant by uniting with the church. May this consecration be the means of inducing others to do likewise. At this time we have trials. Our pastor (Parson Frost) is in a languishing state of health and many fear he will not long remain with us."

OLDEST CITIZEN IN BETHEL

To Receive Cane From Boston Post.

In last week's issue, reference was made to the presentation of a gold headed cane to Frank Richardson, the oldest citizen of Canton by the Boston Post. In this connection it may be fitting to say that the Boston Post is presenting the oldest male citizen of many, if not all, of the towns in the State of Maine, with a gold headed cane, the cane to be transmitted, thus to remain ever in the hands of the oldest male citizen of the various towns. One has been received by the Selectmen of Bethel to be presented to the oldest male citizen of our town. As far as the selectmen know this cane will go to Mr. Joseph Holt. Mr. Holt is 84 years of age. Should there be any male citizen in Bethel, older than this, he should come forward at once and claim the cane, otherwise it will be presented to Mr. Holt.

HEAVY FROST MORNING OF AUG. 31.

Reports from the farms up the Swift river road are to the effect that the frost was heavy Tuesday morning and killed corn and beans, and all the susceptible garden stuff. As the season has been backward there was much stuff not matured, and heavy loss has been sustained. We have received information from Rumford Point section to the effect that there was no frost on the farms along the river because of the fog. The same conditions obtained at the Falls. It was as cold Monday morning as Tuesday, but the high wind prevented frost.

A picnic supper will be served upon the lawn.

"A little nonsense now and then, is relished by the best of men"—(yes, and women too), so if you want to have a number of good laughs and be highly entertained, just watch for posters and photos representing the entertainment entitled, "Nonsense in the Ladies' Hall," which will be given in the near future, under the efficient direction of Miss Harriet Harris and the "Ladies' Church Aid" of the M. E. church. All the parts will be taken by local talent, which is always enjoyed and generally calls forth a large audience. We bespeak a crowded house on this occasion. Watch for further particulars.

The Lord's Supper will be administered next Sunday in the M. E. church, when the usual opportunity will be given to any who may wish to confess sins, or to maintain vows already made, by eating with the church. There is a local call now to men and women to fathers and mothers, to whom God's spirit has come in conviction of sin, to come into the church. There is no money, complete confession of Christ apart from this. If there is any place where parents and children should be united, bearing obligation and testimony, that place is the church. Where this duty of confessing sin is neglected, do not expect any other requirement of religion to be observed. How can we trust, love and serve Jesus Christ when we refuse to confess Him and choose His own ordinance? Dear parents, the place of duty, of safety, and of good example and instruction, is not in the morning world, but in the church which Jesus bought with His blood. God help all to honor His great promises and duty.

DEVICE FOR RINGING HOGS.
Illustration Given Showing Method of Construction of Contrivance to Suit Circumstances.

This is set in the opening of the gate. The hogs are driven as though they were to be turned out. When one puts his head through between the levers close them, fasten with pins, put in the rings, open up the levers and he will go on through.

The platform to which the levers are fastened is for the hog to stand on while being ringed. He is pulling or pushing, as the case may be, against his own weight when standing on the platform, while if standing on the ground a heavy hog would be very hard to hold.

The pen sketch will give the idea of construction, which may be altered to suit convenience and material at hand. This like all farm tools and contrivances, should be kept dry.

It is the time lost when in a hurry if you have to look about the place in the weeds or piled up rubbish for some tool that counts. A place for everything and everything in its place. Study this; it will help you.

Coughing and Wheezing Pig.
My pig, eight months old, had such a coughing and wheezing that its life seemed threatened, and I cured it by using sulphur and cream of tartar in its food. The pig has a dry place to sleep and I attribute the cough to overfeeding of watered separator milk. Its liquid food has been reduced and the grain ration increased. I am glad the cough remedied me that I was in judiciously stuffing the pig, else it might have died from some digestive trouble. The pig is still in a small yard, but I feel certain that its thrill will be enhanced by a run to grass.

Early Maturity in Swine.
This is an exceedingly desirable quality in most animals, but is particularly true in hogs. If the spring pigs can be made to grow rapidly, lay on the right kind of flesh and fat and be marketed in the fall, the profit is sure to be considerable. Most of the growth and weight is put on while plenty of pasture is available. This makes it possible to secure gains at a very low figure. Breeds like Poland China, Essex, Thin Head, Small York shire, etc., seem to be quite desirable for early maturity.

Rights of Man.
"Every man has a right to his own opinions," remarked the moralizer.

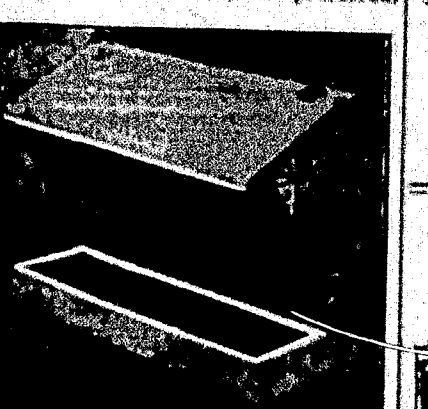

"Yes," rejoined the democrat, with a sigh both broad and long, "and it has to be a married man has a right to keep them under cover."

MASH FEED FOR CHICKENS

The Number Feeding Wet Mash Appears to Be Increasing, as Results Given Are Better.

Most poultrymen feed mash--some wet, some dry. The number feeding the latter appears to be increasing. Its advocates claim equal or greater results, healthier and more vigorous stock, and better results at hatching time, and there certainly is a saving of labor. There is no questioning the fact that mixing and carrying wet mash for any considerable number of hens is hard work and takes time.

What do the hens say about dry mash? We have tried it in a small way, and I have been surprised to see how readily hens that had been accustomed to wet mash took to it, says a writer in Good Literature. We have fitted out five pens with homemade dry-feed hoppers, and are trying it on the hens this winter. A cut of one of these hoppers is shown herewith. It is made from a soap box 20 inches long, 8 inches deep and 15 inches wide, inside measure. The throat at the bottom is two inches, and the tray part is two inches deep. The cover is made sloping to discourage any case-loving hen from taking an after-mash siesta thereon. Leather hinges are used on some of ours. This hopper might be made with the box on end, making a shorter tray and less exposed surface, if preferred.

Self-Feeding for Dry Mash.

These dry-feed hoppers made of wood or galvanized iron may be purchased from poultry supply houses. They may be a little more artistic, but no better for practical purposes.

Another style of hopper for feeding wet mash consists of two triangular end pieces 30 inches high, to which are fastened one by two inch strips, and to these are nailed the upright strips, about two inches wide, sharp at the upper ends. On one side these are nailed fast, but on the other the lower longitudinal strip is rounded at the ends, these ends being fitted into an auger hole in the triangular piece, thus making a sort of gate which is opened to put the feed into the trough. A wire hook at the middle fastens this to the other side when closed.

The trough is about five inches high, V-shaped, and rests in V-shaped cleats at each end, so that it may be removed readily for cleaning. We have two of these feed troughs which have been in use several years. The trough in one of them is made of wood, in the other of galvanized iron. The latter is now rusted through in several places, while the wooden one is good for several years more of use. These feed racks or troughs may be made of any desired length.

We have, also, a couple of the same style racks, about 15 inches square, designed for water. They were very satisfactory while they lasted, but the galvanized iron pans rusted out in a couple of years. One of these was built with a space under the pan so that some hot bricks might be put under in cold weather to keep the water from freezing. These devices may be purchased from some poultry supply houses, though I think the sides are made of round rods instead of slats.

No Fear from the Chickens.
It does not require a very large plot for early vegetables and small garden truck and no fear of the chickens should be felt. The large fields of corn and potatoes can in most cases be planted at some distance from the poultry house, and in any event the fowls will harm them little after they get a good start. But by no means would we be without a place in which we could confine the hens when desired at seed and harvest time and of course breeding hens must be fenced. In this manner the parks do not require to be so large as when confined constantly, and fowls can be given their freedom a greater part of the season. On this plan a larger egg yield will be secured hence the greater profit.

Fence Out the Chickens.
A great many farmers and others do not keep fowls because they claim they destroy so much garden truck and grain. That it is far better for hens to run at large most of the time is generally conceded, and of course no one can have a garden with hens in it. The matter can be easily arranged by having the garden fenced in and the hens fenced out, contrary to the usual method, a fence four feet high will answer and the fence can be removable and of a temporary character.

"Reverend English!"
Eliah, crying bitterly, was coming down the street with her feet bared.

"Why, what on earth's the matter?" she was asked. "How did you hurt your feet, Eliah?"

"Oh good for nothing! Never said. I've done hit me on de head wit a rock while I was standing on de hard stone pavement." "Everybody's Magazine."

OF GOOD USE WHEN IRONING.
Tubes Easily Put Together Save Articles Liable to Be Crushed on the Clothes Rack.

When you iron waists, one-piece dresses and articles liable to crush on the clothes rack, make a number of tubes with newspapers, tie with stout strings and slip the blouse or dress on these holders and hang them on a nail or convenient hook. Once dry, they will not crush so easily, and can be hung in the closet on these holders. Mailing tubes are the best for the purpose, but an old magazine or two papers rolled tightly together answer the purpose. Do not hang ironed towels over each other, for they will not be smooth if packed while still damp. Hang men's shirts by the lower portion, exposing the bosom, neckband and cuffs to dry. Petticoats should be folded but once and hung up to dry around the waistband, which retains some dampness. Handkerchiefs and starched collars should be laid upon paper or napkins near the fire to dry or in the sunshine. A slight sear will disappear if the article is placed in the strong sunlight. Iron lace waists upon the wrong side, and when dry fold the waists and cover with old pieces of sheets or wrap in paper. The best plan is to save all garments for the purpose and

GETTING BREAKFAST ON TIME
Little Hints That Are Time Savers and Worth Being Kept in the Memory.

Do not be two or three hours getting breakfast every morning. Brush the crumbs from the supper table, wash and relay the needed dishes, cut the meat, and prepare the vegetables you wish for breakfast. Baked potatoes are nice and will cook in less than an hour, even in the morning. You can bake gems at the same time if you watch your fire. If you like hot cakes stir them up at night and put in a little yeast. Add the soda in the morning and see how light and tender your cakes are with neither eggs nor cream. It will save many minutes in a week to put a half bushel of potatoes in a tub of water and wash them with a broom or stick. Let them drip in a basket for awhile, then remove to a box containing sticks to keep potatoes from the bottom and you have a supply ready at a minute's notice. You will find it is planning ahead as well as quick steps that brings meals on time, as well as other things.

NORWAY AND SOUTH PARIS

NORWAY.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradford N. Merrill and son George, are visiting during the week at Falmouth, being the guests of Prof. Reuben Merrill.

A large number from here attended the Hamlin exercises on Paris Hill last Friday. Percy Nevers was on hand, dispensing soda and frankfurts. Wiggins Merrill, the photographer, secured many excellent views for post cards, and disposed of quantities of local historical subjects, snapped several days before hand.

The Grange field day held on the Oxford County fair grounds, last Saturday, Aug. 28, was attended by more than five hundred people. They enjoyed the day with games, speeches, discussions, a picnic dinner and concert by the Mackintosh band of Noble's corner.

Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Purinton, Miss Belle Purinton, Mrs. F. S. Chandler of Bethel, Mrs. Fred P. Chandler of Auburn and Wesley K. Woodbury Esq. of Pottsville, Pa., were in town Thursday to attend the funeral services of the late Rev. Webster Woodbury of So. Framingham, Mass.

Frank Davis of Mechanic Falls is in town doing the inside painting, finishing and paperhanging in the two Andrews buildings on Main street. Mr. Davis is an expert at the trade and has his time well filled in this vicinity.

Miss Marion Adams of Portland, was a guest at "Chas. H. Adams' last Sunday. Miss Adams is a graduate from Gray's Business College in short-hand and typewriting and holds an excellent position in the branch office of the Monarch Typewriter Co.

Harry Everett and a crew of carpenters are changing the ruined stone house into a neat cottage home. The work is progressing rapidly and Mr. Geo. Stone will move his family before cold weather.

The Mechanic Falls ball team administered a strong dose to the Radcliffe at the fair grounds, Saturday afternoon, winning the game 7 to 1. Mechanic Falls came heavily armed, having Frank Carey and H. Stanwood in their strong lineup. These fast men added strength so gave the wily Perry Adams excellent support whenever opportunity offered. Radcliffe was greatly handicapped in their catching department, as Frank Lauen was suffering from an injury to his hand which was received in the game of the previous week. Consequently he never should have entered the contest in such a crippled condition, for it made base throwing an erratic thing and disastrous for the Norway club. Stuart of Harrison was on the bench, but catcher Lauen pluckily held out until the ninth inning and Stuart took his position. This move was made too late in the game and the visitors walked off with the contest easily. Trouble started for Radcliffe in the third inning, as they filled their balloon, letting three runs cross the plate on fumbles and wild throws. One run especially should go on record as of the primary school kind. Tilton of Mechanic Falls made a home run on three strikes, coupled with errors all around and exhibitions of kid play on the bases.

This winning gives an even break in the Radcliffe-Mechanic Falls series, each team having won two games. The latter will probably be run off at Mechanic Falls in two weeks.

Radcliffe met the Mohawks again Saturday afternoon at the fair grounds. This is the third game between these teams this season and promises to be a warm battle.

Lawson Flint, the Watford animal dealer, was in town Saturday, having returned from the Cornish fair with his interesting Jungle Show. This "Barnum of Oxford County" will bring his show, greatly enlarged to the county fair, and have many new and instructive animals on exhibition.

SOUTH PARIS.

September. Almost time for County fair.

Mr. George A. Doran and two children are visiting Mr. Doran's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Doran at Ontario. Miss Margaret Baker, of the firm W. J. Wheeler & Co., has returned from a vacation spent at Old Orchard and other places in the vicinity of Portland and is again attending to the office work.

Rev. H. P. Forbes, D. D. of Canton, N. Y., who is visiting relatives in this village, preached a very forcible sermon at the Universalist church Sunday. Mr. Forbes was the poet at the Hamlin Centennial exercises, Friday. He has many relatives in the vicinity who were much pleased at the opportunity to hear him speak.

Mrs. A. C. Hall has gone to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. Herbert C. Ripley, in Oklahoma. Most of her household goods were sold at auction recently.

Mrs. J. J. Emery and daughter are visiting Mrs. Emery's sister, Mrs. J. D. Keefe, at her summer home at Peaks Island.

Lieutenants Dougherty and Marston returned from the rifle tournament at Camp Perry, Ohio, Sunday morning. The Maine team finished 18th in a field of 48 teams. Their aggregate score was considerably better than the team made a year ago, when it finished in 14th position. As a result of the work this year the team will be placed in the second division next year and ought to get their share of the prizes. This year they were obliged to shoot in the first division against the very best teams from the army, navy and cavalry, and against state teams that have large amounts of money expended on them to bring their riders up among the leaders. The state teams which they will shoot against next year will not have so great a handicap over them.

E. N. Haskell and wife are spending a few days with Mrs. Haskell's parents in Denmark.

All services will be resumed in all the churches of the village next Sunday.

Miss Catherine G. Briggs and a friend, Miss Esther Leonard, both nurses in the Massachusetts Hospital, are spending a vacation with Miss Briggs' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Briggs.

News was received here last week of the death of Mrs. Mary (Merry) Hicks at her home in Brunswick. E. E. Kenniston attended the funeral, which was held Saturday of last week. She was a resident of this village for several years and was well known by the name of Mrs. Merry.

As was expected, a greater part of our population was at Paris Hill Friday to attend the exercises in memory of Hannibal Hamlin. The weather conditions were rather trying for an outdoor program because of the strong wind, but the decidedly threatening appearance of the weather the day before made everyone thankful that Friday was as pleasant as it proved to be. There was a large attendance, but not as many from out of town as was expected. The program was carried out exactly as planned and was very interesting to those who were fortunate enough to get within hearing of the speakers. The band concert given by the United States Band from Tugue, which was in attendance, was greatly enjoyed, and some of our loyal citizens thought they could play better than the North Paris band. There was a good delegation from Mt. Mansfield Lodge, I. O. O. F., and Mt. Pleasant Lodge, which was a very social affair. The evening Swastika Orchestra of this place gave a grand ball which was very largely attended.

Quite a large party spent the day at Shag Pond Sunday. At the Walker camp were Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Walker and Miss Eva Walker, and guests, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Briggs, Miss Catherine Briggs, Miss Esther Leonard, Miss Carrie Hall, Miss Hattie Hornell, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Park entertained at their camp. Mr. and Mrs. W. Bowker and daughter Mabel, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hastings Dean.

With perfect weather conditions, the field day at the fair grounds Saturday under the auspices of the State Grange was a great success. People came from all directions and it was estimated that there were between 1500 and 1800 present. A ball game between the members of Norway and Paris Granges was one of the features of the forenoon. Only four innings were played and Norway won by the close score of 4 to 2. The speakers were Rev. J. H. Little, Chaplain of the Maine State Grange, I. S. Heston, Master of the Maine State Grange, Mortimer Whitehead of New Jersey, Past National Lecturer. The speakers were introduced by T. S. Hamlin, Master of the Oxford County Grange. Headings were also given by Miss Helen Howe of Norway.

way, Mrs. Rebecca Shedd of Crooked River Grange. First class music for the occasion was furnished by the Mackintosh band of North Norway. A picnic dinner was enjoyed at noon. A large number of the grangers remained after their exercises were completed, to witness the Radcliffe-Mechanic Falls ball game.

A new electric sign has been placed on a pole in front of Central Park, some of the fence rebuilt and other improvements made about the place.

A CONTAGIOUS IDEA.

A teller who was detailed to the woman's window in a bank was asked by a portly German hausfrau for a new envelope for her bankbook, relates Outlook. The lady behind her, noting that her own envelope was a trifle dingy, asked also for a fresh envelope.

No. 3 said "Me too," or words to the same effect, and so it went down the line. When his patience and his stock of envelopes threatened to give out the teller determined to call a halt. A fastidiously dressed woman appeared at the window holding out a perfectly gloved hand.

"I should like one, too, please," said she.

"One what, madam?" asked the teller.

The lady flushed and began to look comical.

"Why," she stammered, "what the other ladies had."

Some Maine People Fail to Realize the Seriousness.

The constant aching of a bad back, The weariness, the tired feeling, The pains and aches of kidney ailments are serious—if neglected. Dangerous urinary troubles follow. A Rumford Falls citizen shows you how to avoid them.

Mrs. E. C. Tibbitts, living at 672 Prospect Ave., Rumford Falls, Me., says: "I suffered from kidney trouble for several years, the attacks coming on every few months. There were pains in my back and sides and the kidney secretions passed too frequently. I took a number of remedies, but none proved of benefit until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. I have since been feeling much better and the kidney secretions are more regular. I willingly recommend this excellent remedy."

VIRGINIA SECTION

Owing to the hilly and broken condition of the land near Rumford Falls as well as the high prices asked for land in close proximity to the Island, suburban villages have sprung up. Virginia comprising the territory above the Falls and taking in all of the Virgin farm, and land beyond, is one of the most conspicuous of the villages that surround Rumford. It is one of the best residential sections in the place and has had a rapid growth. One of the good features is the abundant spring water, and the system that connects the greater part of the residences with pure running water. The advertisements herewith presented show the business importance of the section. The great Dunton Lumber Mill and the Rumford Steam Laundry are the industries that furnish employment to many of the residents. The settlement is about one mile from the Island.

TAB KEEPERS WERE BADLY FOOLED.

Matthew McCarthy, the moderator, announced the result there was a scene the proper portrayal of which would need the talent of the finest artist in words as well as colors. The leading men against the bridge were there as were those favoring, and all were vitally interested, and as before said, were convinced that the appropriation had been defeated. The look of amazement that overspread the faces of all cannot be even imagined. Much less can the changing lines of facial expression from surprise to consternation in one set of men, and to elation in the other be traced by the pen. Their respective feelings can only be understood by those who saw them, and in a degree shared the feelings of one or the other party. To the bridge men it was "victory snatched from the jaws of defeat" even after the terms of capitulation had been talked over between the generals. To the opponents it was like being dashed down from the heights after having made a safe ascent, and while exchanging congratulations among themselves, and extending congratulations to their competitors, who had failed to make the ascent.

As the fact that the appropriation had been voted got rubbed into the minds of the waiting crowd, there was an outburst of applause, that shook the eaves outside, and soon the news spread over the village, and for the rest of the day and evening there was little or nothing talked of but the strange result.

The opinion expressed by those who were in favor of the bridge, and who understood the undercurrent influence that flow throughout the town was to the effect that many voters who were subjected to influence of one kind and another, went up to the polls boldly carrying a "no" vote, and slipped a "yes" vote into the box so slyly that the tab keepers did not catch on. There was also an opinion expressed that many farmers who were before opposed to the bridge, and until the day before election had been talking against the appropriation, had changed their minds after reading the Citizen article, and voted in favor of the appropriation. The contention is that they also carried a "no" vote to the polls as a bluff.

What ever the cause, and the opponents can not explain it, and do not try, there was never anything in Rumford that created such a sensation as this election.

We will now give a brief summary of the meeting as it was conducted in regular order.

Regular Order. Open Presentation to Nahum Moore.

At 10 o'clock a. m., Clerk Oliver A. Pettengill called the meeting to order in the Wigwam and read the warrant. The motion of H. W. Howe, Matthew McCarthy was nominated for moderator. Col. Geo. D. Diabes seconded the nomination, then making it plain that no contest was to be made over presiding officer. Adjournment was then made to the Open House. Before the business of the meeting was undertaken, Chairman of the board of Selectmen, R. L. Melcher, addressed the people, and explained that there would be presented the gold headed cane that the Boston Post had sent to the selectmen, to be given to the oldest voter in Rumford. He then called upon Judge A. E. Stearns to make the presentation speech.

Judge Stearns explained the occasion, and described the gift, and complimented the Post, and then made some very appropriate remarks citing the fact that the attainment of old age was not of itself an honor, or the possession of citizenship for the good and bad alike attained to both, but the fact that the man selected to receive this cane was in addition to being the oldest legal voter, one of the finest examples of New England manhood, and a man whose life had been such that had the gift been intended for the most upright and honorable citizen it could not have been given to one more worthy to receive it than Nahum Moore. Amidst the applause, Col. Geo. D. Diabes escorted Mr. Moore to the stage, where the cane was formally presented to him. Mr. Moore did not know that the cane was to be presented to him at this meeting, and was unprepared to make a speech, but very nicely met the requirements of the occasion by saying in effect that he was surprised, but grateful both for the gift and the complimentary address of the Judge. He then looked at the cane and said that he would keep it, and when he got old would use it, but at present it was of use to him only as an ornament. After thanking the selectmen, the Post and the people, he announced that as it was near train time he would have to be excused as his duties as an employee on the M. C. R. R. required his presence at the station in less than fifteen minutes. Mr. Moore then walked off the stage and out of the hall, and his 85 years of life had no more effect upon him than the sixty years of many present.

The moderator then read the second article in the warrant, and as it was moved and seconded that the town raise the amount of $65,000 the voting proceeded without delay. It was decided to keep the polls open until 4 p. m.

After the announcement of the vote and the people had recovered from their surprise a motion to authorize the selectmen to issue and sell town bonds for the amount appropriated was made and carried. Col. Geo. D. Diabes doubted the yes and nay vote, and called for a showing of hands. He explained that he did this as a precautionary measure, as there would be other proceedings and he wished to secure all the rights that his clients were entitled to. There were 27 votes for and 8 against the motion, and it was declared carried. The meeting then adjourned.

In the editorial columns there will be found some further explanations concerning the bridge matter.

The transportation of the parts of the new machinery for the new power house is a work that requires time and patience. The sections are very heavy, and are moved by the slow process of horse power winches. One section weighed 25 tons. The sections would not give permit to cross the bridge, but the company furnishing the machinery took the responsibility and moved it across. It was a case of "had to" for there was no other way. One large piece was gotten across the bridge Saturday night and was left there over Sunday. As it was in the center of the road, teams were not much inconvenienced by it.

At a Trifling Cost This Harrow Spills and Spreads the Crowns of the Plants.

The disk harrow is a common practice. The ordinary disk harrow is widely used for this purpose, but a special machine for the cultivation of alfalfa has been devised on the principle of the disk harrow, but with rows or strong spikes or digging teeth in place of the continuous edges of disks. The spike tooth disk, known as the "alfalfa harrow," does excellent work when properly adjusted, and is perhaps a better implement for this purpose than the ordinary harrow.

At a trifling cost, varying according to individual circumstances, this harrow splits and spreads the crowns of alfalfa plants.

of alfalfa plants, causing them to develop additional tops; it destroys the egg deposits and larvae of certain injurious insects; it destroys weeds; it breaks up the silt blanket resulting from the use of muddy irrigating water, allowing better penetration of water and air to the roots of the crop; it loosens up certain dense soils, and to some extent it incorporates beneficial sediments and fallen alfalfa leaves with the soil.—Prof. R. H. Forbes.

CELERY FOR HOME AND MARK

Vegetable Loves a Cool Climate and a Light, Fertile, Humus-Laden, Moist Soil.

Although requiring rather peculiar climate and soil conditions, yet celery can be grown both for home use and market over a wider area than most people think. Almost everybody is fond of celery, and it is a healthful vegetable food. With a little study and experience in growing it, celery might be on the table of ten times the number of homes that it now is, and it might be grown for market by twice the number of gardeners that already grow it.

Celery loves a cool climate, and a light, fertile, humus-laden, moist soil. The ideal climatic conditions for the production of celery are bright sunshine, pure air, cool nights and a well distributed rainfall of about eight inches during the growing period in the field or garden.

In the production of celery for domestic use, a rich, mellow, sandy loam will give the best results. The soil of the seed bed should contain plenty of leaf mold and should be passed through a sieve having not less than six meshes to the inch. The soil of the transplanting bed need not be sifted so fine, and some well rotted barnyard manure should replace a part of the leaf mold; in other respects it should be the same as the seed bed.

Any fertile, well drained soil will grow celery, but a rich, loose, sandy loam is preferable. The soil cannot well be made too rich, and the presence of a large amount of humus or vegetable mold is an essential for large and rapid growth. In the regions where peat bogs or muck soil abound the crop may be more easily produced on these than on any other soils, but the keeping qualities are not so good, and the flavor is never equal to that of celery grown on sandy loam, or even on clay soils. If nothing but clay soil is available, it may be made to produce good celery by liberal application of well rotted manure. On clay soils there is likely to be injury caused by the soil becoming washed into the hearts of the plants while they are yet small.

High Grade of Meat Animals.

It has been clearly demonstrated by experience that it pays the farmer to raise a high grade of cattle, sheep and hogs. The farmer who is using scrub males, whether of cattle, hogs or sheep, cannot expect to produce the best grade of meat, no matter how intelligently he may feed. He has been wrong.

Let him be particular about the individual merit of the animal. See that he has good bone, a strong constitution and even flesh. Be sure that he is strong in the back or loin, short of neck and thickset in the head. Look out for blackness of form and shortness of leg. Inquire of the owner how the animal has been cared for, and seek to duplicate the care when he is transferred to his new home.

Late Potatoes.

Potatoes planted after June 1 may not mature before frost. Potatoes, like other crops, need plant food. Potatoes should be well supplied with humus to increase their capacity for retaining water. Humus is a so-called enemy to the crop. Humus is best supplied by plowing under clover. If stable manure is used it should be applied a year ahead of the potato crop.

Care of the Ladder.

Keep the rungs of the ladder all good and tight. When you go to climbing fruit trees or handling worms' nests you don't want to fall and break a leg. Things that hang under you often take the snap out of you.

HOUSE FOR HUNDRED HENS.

Good Poultry Shed Can Be Constructed for $100—Plans by an Expert for Its Erection.

T. E. Orr, the poultry expert, says a good poultry house for 100 hens can be built for $100. He suggests that it should be 18 feet long, 12 feet wide, 4 1/2 feet high at the rear, 5 1/2 feet high at the front. Cut rear rafters 9 feet long and front rafters 5 feet long. This will make the peak of the roof 7 1/2 feet high.

The cross section shown in the cut illustrates the construction. Let the front and rear rafters of each pair be tied to the cross beam, 3 feet long, and under these, both at the ends and every 12 feet from the end, place uprights 3 1/2 feet long, 2 1/2 feet apart. This stiffens and supports the roof and also serves as door posts, for a 48-foot house should have three partitions dividing it into four compartments, each 12 feet square.
Cover the framework with sheathing. Use 16-foot boards one inch thick, surfaced on one side, fitted smooth and snug. If the house stands up one or two feet from the ground on posts let the rear sheathing boards run clear down to the ground. Cover with the best roofing paper you can buy and then give a coat of hot tar. Repeat the tar six months later and once each year thereafter, and this will be a good roof for 20 years.

PLAN FOR SIMPLE TRAP NEST

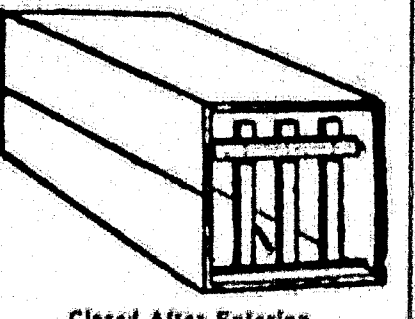

One Can Be Made Cheaply Out of Common Box by Following Directions Herewith Given.

The accompanying plan of trap nest is quite simple and can be made from a box of suitable size. It should be 12 or 14 inches square by 20 or 24 inches long. The slats should be nailed to a crosspiece about one-quarter the distance from the top. A couple of nails are driven through the box and into the crosspiece to swing open. Half way back, on the inside,

Closed After Entering.

a narrow piece of board is nailed, back of which the nest is made.
To set the trap simply raise the slat inward from the bottom eight or nine inches high and place a small stick under one of the slats. As the hen enters the door is raised off the stick, which falls to the floor. There should be about five slats for a box 12 or 14 inches in width, slats close against inch strip at bottom.

Door for the Chicken Run.
The small door opening on the chicken run, and for the use of the fowls only, may be arranged to open and close from the front without the necessity of going inside the house.

To make this possible the door should be put in as to slide easily up and down. Through the top of the door fasten a strong wire, terminating with a weight, the wire running straight up and over a small iron pulley which is fastened in the ceiling directly over the door. The wire is then carried across the ceiling and down (possibly over another pulley, depending on the height of the ceiling), coming out through a hole bored in the front of the building near the large door (or wherever is most convenient) and where the end is finished with a wooden button.
To open the door pull the wire out, then down to the full length of the wire, and slip it under a couple of nails farther down on the outside of the building. To close it remove the button from its lower fastening and allow it to slide back to the place of exit, and the weight fastened over the little door will carry it down to position.—M. E. Hymers.

Realism.

Critic (as the composer plays his last piece)—Very fine, indeed. But what is that passage which makes the cold chills run down the back?

Composer—That is where the wanderer has the hotel bill brought to him.

Good-nature.

"But," asked the first coach, "why did you elect to take up the study of German instead of French?"

"Oh," replied the other, "the German professor was so awfully kind-natured, you know."—Catholics Standard and Times.

His First Visit.

Stub—Uncle Hoochah made a ridiculous blunder in that swell case last night. He noticed the dignified waiter in tuxedo suit going around with towels on his arms.

Penn—Was the old man puzzled?

Stub—I should say so. He looked over and asked if the gentleman in wedding suit was going to take a bath!

Bothams Cannot Be Cured

By local application, as they cannot reach the diseased system of the eye. There is only one way to cure bothams, and that is by removing the diseased system of the eye by the use of the "Botham Cure." When it is used, the diseased system is removed and the eye is cured. It is a simple and easy cure, and it is the only one that will cure bothams. It is the only one that will cure bothams. It is the only one that will cure bothams.

"Mary," said the mistress, addressing her new servant, "turn the nap-jacks quick!"

Hurrying to the stalling pan, the servant did so.

"That was well done, Mary; you didn't break one of them. Stop! Why are you turning them over again?"

"They are one good turn deserves another, mum!"—Judge.

All In.

The Hostess—I hope you will like this punch. My husband worked over it all the afternoon, making it with his own hands.

The Guests—It's grand! Where is your husband? We must congratulate him.

The Hostess—Sorry, but he can't be seen. I just put him to bed.—Puck.

An Irrelevant Slip.

"After all," said the senator, "the Ten Commandments constitute the greatest and most intelligent set of laws ever laid down."

"Yes," answered the representative, "that's because they were given direct to the people without being amended by the senate."

Nothing Doing.

"What did the editor offer you for your poem?"

"A year's subscription to the magazine."

"Did you take it?"

"No, indeed. I told him that I wouldn't have any more ideas if I read that magazine for a year."

The Lowest Level.

Scribble—What is Rhyming doing now?

Dribble—Writing advertising material for a sausage manufacturer, I believe.

Scribble—Poor old Rhyming! I never thought he would get down to doggerel.

Bobby's Idea.

Beetle—"Oh, look, Bobby, there is a taxiderm broken down in the street. Do you think they'll send for a blacksmith?"

Bobby—No, I guess they will send for a taxidermist.

Great Movers-Around.

"Your dog seems to be very restless."

"It ain't the dog that's restless," said the little boy.

"It's his nose."

Lying Anyhow.

"The Adams ship disappeared now?"

"Not exactly. I think the members are just trying her."

LOCAL HISTORY.

In the month of July another meeting was held, when it was recorded "that God has taken another bud from a member and caused it to bloom undauntedly in Paradise," but names of parents are omitted.

I now come to the last page and the last entry upon the association records which is the hand writing of the president—Mrs. Lucinda M. (Smith) Frost, second wife of Rev. Charles Frost. As there was considerable feeling engendered at about that time among the society members, relative to a change of location or erection of a new meeting house it is more than probable that at this date in its history the "Maternal Association" came to its end. I copy literally the contents of the page, and it is gratifying indeed to find at this time a production in her own hand and from her own mind and sentiments of her own heart that reflects culture, devotion to friends and excellence in diction, as follows:

"May 1, 1848. The heart that indited and the hand that penned the foregoing are still in death. The dear friend and beloved secretary of the association has gone to receive her reward and we have been suddenly bereft of one of our most affectionate members. The church of Christ, too, has lost an active and devoted member and our children and youth have lost a friend who was ever solicitous for their spiritual welfare. Mrs. Chapman was endowed by her Heavenly Father with an excellent mind which she was enabled by grace to dedicate to his service in early life, and daily walks and conversation were sufficient evidence of the sincerity of her piety. Her heart seemed always filled with love for the Saviour and overflowing with 'Christian affection towards his disciples. She was frank, ardent and sincere in her intercourse with others, and noted for her truthfulness and firm integrity. Mrs. Chapman's health had been declining since the death of her husband, which occurred a little more than two years before her own, but death came suddenly and she was cut down in a minute, but we have reason to rejoice in the assured hope that she was prepared for the summons however sudden it might come. Oh, that her spirit might rest upon all the children of her adoption and her own daughter, left an orphan, in early life, without the watchful care of a mother. May we all be led by this afflictive dispensation to do with our might whatsoever our hand findeth to do for the cause of Christ and for the salvation of our households."

(Signed) L. M. B. P.

The second "Mrs. B. Chapman" alluded to last week as secretary of the "Maternal Association" and upon whom Mrs. Charles Frost bestows the preceding eulogistic words was the second wife of Elbridge Chapman, Jr., eldest son of Rev. Ephraim Elbridge, Jr., then living on the north side of the Androscoggin river about seven miles from the Bethel railroad depot, now the second farm westerly from the Bethel line in Oilead, where he was a farmer and local office holder. He died July 9, 1841. Her maiden name was Betsey Adams and they were married March 8, 1830. When she became the step-mother Robert A., the oldest son, was twenty-three years of age; Timothy J., twenty; Elbridge (Deacon) seventeen; Gilbert thirteen; Salome Barnham six and then Leary Elbridge, the only child of the last marriage was born Oct. 31, 1831. I fail to find a record that gives the exact date of her demise. The farm is said to be a good one and remains in the Chapman name, though it is traditional that Elbridge, the father, sold it to his son, Timothy Jackson and joined his land in trade on the Hill where he was living in the house now occupied by Mr. Messer M. Hastings at the time of his death, which has undergone many changes since the first part was built.

Whatever the influence of the step-mother may have been, of whom Mrs. Frost leaves such a glowing account, the several members of the household and descendants have rendered good accounts of themselves. Robert A. and Elbridge engaged in trade as partners, carrying the greatest variety and quantity of stock of any other firm of the place and met with marked success. Both were members of the West Congregational church, but each was far different from the other in personal make up. Robert A. was somewhat bombastic when aroused, an illustration presenting itself in the story told of the attempt to narrow Broad street, and a fence had been erected and an appeal was made to him by the objectors and he went out to the spot but a few rods distant, where he slapped his sides with his hands, exclaiming: "pull it down, boys, pull it down!" and the "boys" did and it remains down to this day, more than a half century having elapsed since the exhibition. The attributes of personalness predominated in Elbridge. If the minister was absent, Deacon Elbridge, read a sermon in an interesting manner he being possessed of the natural gift of good articulation. If the chorister failed to appear, the deacon's wife could and did manipulate the wand, her voice being replete with the melody so productive of enchantment. She was the daughter of Mr. John Kimball, generally known by the pet name of "Johnny," and sister to Dr. John R. Leland Kimball, an alumnus of Gould's who graduated at Woodstock and settled in Saco. John Kimball, senior, occupied an enviable seat in the front row of local singers and the West church choir was made up as follows: John Kimball, bass, (leader), Mrs. Deirdra (Kimball) Chapman, soprano, David P. Brown, tenor, Mrs. Susanna W. (Stevens) True, alto.
